

I have completely cut the chord and I am living with the luxury of wireless mobility. The only thing I find frustrating is that I can't switch my carrier without worrying about getting a new number and having to communicating my new number to all my co-workers, friends and family. Therefore, I am locked into the carrier I currently have, even though another carrier has a better offer for my needs and I could be saving money. My main concern is that I won't reach everyone to let them know that my number has changed, or contacts that I have given my number to in the past, won't be able to reach me if I get a new number. I don't have the back up of a stable landline number, therefore I am tied in to my current carrier. I would like to have the ability to take my number with me if I were to switch carriers, the whole reason I cut the chord was to give myself more flexibility. I have found that there is less flexibility now that I have cut the chord in regards to my options of who can provide me with the wireless service that I need. I think it would be very beneficial to wireless users to be able to take their number with them when they change carriers. Thank you.